

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electric shaver including a cutter frame; an outer cutter disposed inside the cutter frame and is composed of a shaving surface having hair introduction openings, a side wall formed in continuous to the shaving surface, and corner slits formed in the side wall so as to communicate with the hair introduction openings; and an inner cutter having a plurality of inner cutter bodies that make sliding contact with an inside surface of the shaving surface of the outer cutter; wherein the electric shaver is provided with an upright member which is disposed between the side wall and side end surfaces of the inner cutter bodies that face the side wall and is disposed upright in a direction perpendicular to the shaving surface of the outer cutter. The tip end portion of upright member can protrude further toward the shaving surface than the end portions of the corner slits.